

Dr. Alessandra Spedicato (Italy)

President,

European Federation of Salaried Doctors (FEMS)

Born in 1976, she has worked in the Italian Public Healthcare System for nearly three decades and currently practices as a consultant anesthesiologist and intensivist in Rome, Italy. Since October 2024 she has served as President of the European Federation of Salaried Doctors (FEMS), while continuing her clinical activity.

Since 2010, she has been actively involved in trade union activities for the medical workforce in Italy and, from 2013, at the European level. Her work focuses on the protection of physicians' rights, the improvement of working conditions in healthcare systems, and the promotion of sustainable workforce policies.

Her main areas of interest include the recognition of the medical profession as an arduous job, the implementation of the European Working Time Directive in healthcare, and the development of workforce planning policies that place physicians' health and wellbeing at the center of European health systems.
